Guide to Cartoons and Comics in the National Museum of Health and Medicine

Guide by: Michael Rhode (2006)

Scope and Content Note: All museums maintain research collections that are far larger than the material on exhibit. The NMHM's archives has a wide variety of collections, some of which include interesting material on comic art. Cartoonists represented include Clifford Berryman, Robert Osborn, Al Posen, Frank Robbins, Arthur Szyk, Paul Terry and Frank Mack. Popular characters include Dagwood. Most archives have collections or files that include clippings and these can frequently be a source for cartoons whether originally intended or not. The following list of collections in the Otis Historical Archives provides an overview of cartoons and comic art here at the NMHM.

OHA 30 Curatorial Records: World War II Posters, ca. 1942-1946

Health education posters, including paste-ups and printed copies, created by the Medical Museum's Medical Illustration Service during World War II. Subjects include sexually-transmissible diseases (series of 41 posters); typhus; filariasis; dengue fever; malaria; hygiene; lice, mosquitos, and other pests; and food preparation. The posters were printed by the Government Printing Office.

OHA 288 Reid Collection, 1919-1936

Correspondence of Capt. Elizabeth Reid of the U.S. Army Nursing Corps, who served in Germany after World War I and at Walter Reed in the 1930s. An additional donation of photographs in 2004 included one of a child holding a doll of Buttercup, the baby from the Toots and Casper comic strip.

OHA 293.05 Saint Elizabeth's Hospital Collection, 1861-1990

Material transferred when Saint Elizabeth's closed its museum due to being transferred from the federal government to the District of Columbia. Includes two original editorial cartoons. 1. Dr. Winifred

Overholser and Dr. William A. White at an American Psychiatric Association meeting, by Roseman of the Boston Post; 2. Clifford Berryman cartoon showing Senator Carlson (written on his hat) handing a model of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to Dr. Overholser (written on his doctor's smock) as he stands in the doorway of St. E's. Inscribed: To my esteemed friend Dr. Winfred Overholser who knows nuts from noodles with cordial regard, C.K. Berryman Evening Star Jan. 29. 1944. Matted below the cartoon are two notes:

- 5/10 Dr. C. Today, I talked to Jim Berryman, son of C.K. Berryman, regarding the cartoon and its meaning. Mr. Berryman said he thinks this is when Carlson (he thought he was a Senator from Kansas) first put pressure on Congress for taxation on charitable institutions. They have tried, each session since then, to push thru this taxation, but have never been successful. M.T.
- And hand-written on stationary from Overholser' desk: Feb 17, 1963 Dear Dale This is an original Berryman cartoon. It might be of interest for your historical museum. Sincerely, WO

OHA 333 Townsend Collection, 1950s-1960s

Two booklets illustrated by Robert Osborn, Strange Area Sense [Pamphlet 95-4; military aviation] (1960) and Human Sense [Pamphlet 95-3; military aviation and psychology] (1959), Washington: Department of the Army; Collection also has military newspapers with comics in them.

OHA 344 U.S. Army Veterinary Corps Archive (AVCA), 1916-1979

Collected material on the AVCA which includes clippings and articles that might have cartoons. Examples from Box 163, 'Vietnam -- Dogs' folder include a Blondie savings bond ad (The Observer, September 11, 1970), Fan Fare comic strips by Walt Ditzen, a Herblock cartoon on wire-tapping, and a tearsheet of gag cartoons "Up Country" with SP6 Bill Dolan (Army Digest, November 1967, p. 59).

OHA 351 Vietnam War Collection, 1960s-1970s

Artificial collection of various materials on the Vietnam War, much of it captured items. Includes a US Army Intelligence copy of a bootleg Batman image on a Vietnamese nasal decongestant, demonstrating his world-wide popularity during the television show.
