Series/Scope and Content Note: D.K. Winter (1903-1980) trained with Max Brödel of Johns Hopkins University. He joined the AFIP Scientific Illustration Division in 1948 after illustrating for the New York Medical College, University of Kansas Medical School, the New York Institute of Ophthalmology and the Hines Veterans Administration Hospital in Chicago. His career included numerous publications in medical dictionaries and atlases such as "Atlas of the Anomalous Hearts" and "Veterinary Necropsy Procedures Manual." He retired as Chief Medical Illustrator in 1968. In 1980, Winter died of pneumonia at the age of 77. Biographical information on Winter can be found in the AFIP Historical Files.
